

Clarke Lane and Hume Street update

December 2023 – May 2024

Sydney Metro is Australia's biggest public transport project.

Services started in May 2019 in the city's North West with a train every four minutes in the peak. Metro rail will be extended into the CBD in 2024, with new metro railway stations at Crows Nest, Victoria Cross, Barangaroo, Martin Place, Gadigal and Waterloo, and new metro platforms at Central, and then onto Bankstown in 2025.

A W Edwards is building the new Crows Nest Station. Rail track installation and the stations main structural works are now complete and fit out and exterior works are progressing.

Re-opening of Clarke Lane and Hume Street

All public domain work is expected to be completed in the first half of 2024. This includes work on Hume Street (between Clarke Lane and Pacific Highway) and Clarke Lane (between the rear of 20 Clarke Street and Hume Street) roadways which are expected to re-open in May 2024.

Both roadways must remain closed until public domain works and permanent utility and road tie-ins are completed.

Access

Current access arrangements will remain in place on Hume Street:

- no access for motorists or pedestrians between Pacific Highway and Clarke Lane
- two-way motorist access between Clarke Lane and Clarke Street will be maintained
- alternate access routes which came into effect July 2021 will continue.

Current access arrangements will also remain in place on Clarke Lane:

- no through access for motorists from Clarke Lane (north) to Hume Street
- access to Clarke Lane (north) will be maintained via Oxley Street.
