

Sydney Metro is Australia's largest public transport project

Sydney Metro Greater West is the new metro railway line which will service Greater Western Sydney and the new Western Sydney International (Nancy-Bird Walton) Airport.

The new railway will include stations at the airport, Western Sydney Aerotropolis, and St Marys – where customers can connect with the rest of Sydney's existing suburban rail network.

World-class metro rail means better access to more places, faster travel times, less congestion on roads and a reduced reliance on cars.

Metro services have started in the city's North West between Rouse Hill and Chatswood and will be extended into the Sydney CBD and beyond to Bankstown in 2024. Detailed investigations are also taking place for Sydney Metro West, which will link the CBDs of Parramatta and Sydney and communities along the way in around 20 minutes.

Geotechnical work – Werrington

Geotechnical investigations are taking place on Lethbridge Avenue, Werrington to assist with early planning and design work for Sydney Metro Greater West.

These investigations will help to determine the underlying ground and groundwater conditions.

The geotechnical work is scheduled to start from Wednesday, 19 June 2019 on Lethbridge Avenue, adjacent to the rail corridor. Work is expected to take about two weeks to complete (weather and site conditions permitting).

Work will involve

- Establishing a temporary investigation site
- A mobile rig to drill a borehole to below ground level
- Vacuum excavation truck to remove spoil from site
- An increase in light vehicle movements
- Following the investigations, technicians will carry out periodic groundwater monitoring.

What to expect

Access to properties will be maintained.

The ground surface will be reinstated at completion of the work.

The noise impact from these activities is expected to be minimal with work taking place during standard construction hours, which are Monday to Friday 7am-6pm and Saturday 8am-1pm.

If work is required outside these hours, notification will be provided in advance.

Thank you for your cooperation while we complete this essential work.
