Have your say

Sydney Metro is Australia's biggest public transport project and a once-in-a-century infrastructure investment, transforming Sydney with a world-class metro.

Sydney Metro West will be Sydney's next underground railway and is expected to create approximately 10,000 direct and 70,000 indirect jobs. Stations have been confirmed at Westmead, Parramatta, Sydney Olympic Park, North Strathfield, Burwood North, Five Dock and The Bays.

Over the next 20 years, The Bays will be transformed into Sydney's newest destination and employment hub with regeneration of almost 100 hectares of land.

In preparation for this transformation, which would include The Bays Station, road works are proposed to be undertaken near the port at White Bay.

This would ensure reliability of the road network in the area and ongoing access to the White Bay Cruise Terminal and other port related businesses within Glebe Island and White Bay.

Sydney Metro West would deliver these works, with construction planned to start in late 2020.

A Review of Environmental Factors for these works is now on public exhibition until 29 May 2020.

The Review of Environmental Factors considers potential environmental impacts of the proposal and the measures to mitigate them.

These works are being assessed and determined by Sydney Metro.

Community members are invited to submit feedback on the proposal directly to Sydney Metro.

A report detailing submissions and any changes made to the project will be made available on the Sydney Metro website following the exhibition period.

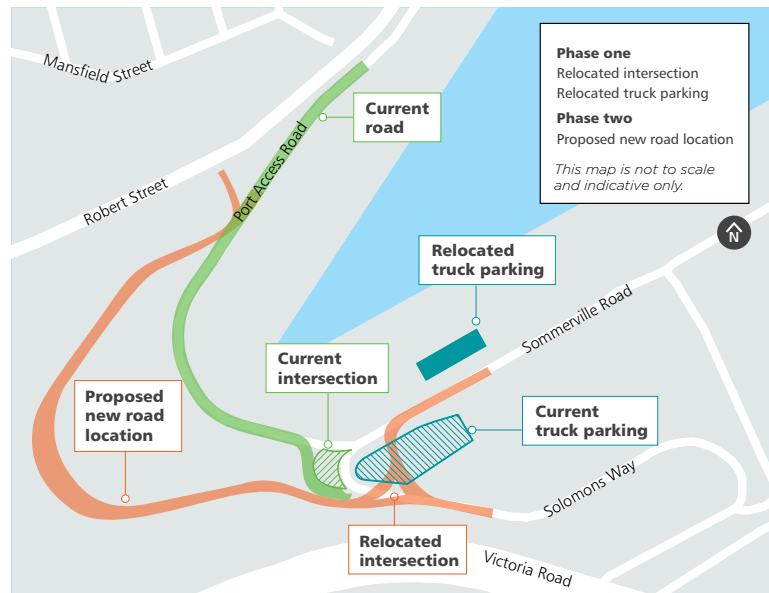

Key features

The proposal would include phased improvements at the intersection of Port Access Road, Sommerville Road and Solomons Way (the White Bay intersection).

Phase one - relocating White Bay intersection, including changes to line markings and signage and truck parking for Cement Australia.

Phase two - potential relocation of Port Access Road subject to further design development and stakeholder engagement.

These works are proposed to be undertaken during the day and are not expected to impact traffic flows on public roads outside of White Bay.
